

OLD MAN LUEDECKE

"Part Dock Boggs, part Walt Whitman and part aphorism-peddler is Old Man Luedecke, a hillside Nova Scotia songster who gently plays a banjo, turns phrases awfully well, falls down and picks himself up again. Old Man Luedecke, sing on - we'll follow."

— The Globe and Mail

My Hands are on Fire and other Love Songs